Reclassification rate is calculated by dividing the number of students reclassified as English Language proficient in a certain period by the total number of English Learners at the beginning of that period. Schools with significant numbers of beginning ELs will have a reclassification rate skewed lower than it should be.

Note - results listed for a year are for the 12 months ending in early October of that school year. For instance, the 16-17 results report students reclassified between Oct 2015 and Oct 2016.
